THE TERRACE pool was a bonus, but the penthouse was a must. "A penthouse combines the features of a flat and bungalow," says 25-year-old Nikhil Agarwal, assistant vice president with his family transport business. "But since it's in a building, electricity, security, etc., is all taken care of." The duplex apartment, designed by Anjali Goel, founder of the interior decorating firm La Sorogeeka, with five rooms, two terraces, lobbies, puja room and servants' quarters, easily accommodates the family consisting of NK Agarwal, his wife Madhu, son Nikhil, daughter Samiha and his mother. Their favourite part? The terrace, with its pool, water bodies and greenery.

A penthouse combines the conveniences of an apartment building with the space of a bungalow. It was a must for us
