Serendipity of Affection

Anjali is the force behind La Soroageeka - the brand that creates and designs luxurious homes. No doubt she firmly believes in the saying 'home is, where the heart is'; and her entrepreneur skills make sure it beats in the right place! From a small factory approximating 1,000 sq feet in Sainik Farms, Anjali Goel has worked her way to a plush office and showroom at Okhla in New Delhi.

She has had the credit of launching Asia's largest integrated design and interior studio at Noida.

Spread across three acres, the manufacturing facility has an in-house art studio and a design center, along with a research and development center. Under her aegis, La Soroageeka has successfully completed over 700 projects globally. Her dream image captures the unfathomable depths of a mother-daughter relationship.

Deeper than the deep waters, we were on a cruising trip when this picture was clicked. Rolling on the smooth waves of relaxed fantasy on a cruise liner, my daughter Kashish and I were sailing together for a long exotic vacation to Alaska, when our closeness was preserved for life.

This image is a symbol of that unbreakable bond, and it's no wonder, that this one is really close to my heart.

It's been four years since we have glided together on such a trip, but the memories from this particular trip are still fresh in my mind. Looking back, I can visualize the entire vacation in an instant. It was a gateway to heaven, with my darling daughter along. I remember how both of us were supremely excited about this holiday, and the ambiance in the cruise liner just added to our delight of being there — in each other's close proximity, chatting and building a new closeness altogether.

I think it holds so much value because we got a chance to go out for a holiday together after many years, and we enjoyed every moment, every aspect of our relationship in that architectural paradise!
